TAFT TERM FREE FROM HANGINGS*While Seven Convictions Have Been Secured, None Yet
Executed.*A UNIQUE DISTINCTION*Extreme Penalty in Several Cases Will Follow After the Inauguration.Although there has been seven convictions for murder in the first degree in the District courts during President Taft's administration, the chances are that the President will leave the White House March 4 enjoying the unique distinction of not having capital punishment executed on any of those convicted during his Presidential incumbency.It should not be inferred, however, that President Taft extended executive clemency to the seven convicted murderers or in any way caused the suspension or postponement of the executions which have been set by the courts.
Two of the cases were committed to life sentences by the President. They are those of Mattie Lomax, colored, who was convicted of murdering her husband and was sentenced to death May 28, 1911.
The woman's sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, it being shown that she suffered from tuberculosis and that she would not live long. The other case is that of Arthur Johnson, whose sentence was also commuted to life imprisonment. He was sentenced June 2, 1911.
The jury returned a qualified verdict in his case, recommending life imprisonment, and the government appealed, the Supreme Court of the United States holding that the jury was without right to return a "qualified" verdict in the District of Columbia.The other cases are still pending in the Court of Appeals, with the exception of that of Samuel Rausen, who was to have been hanged February 14, but whose execution was postponed until March 14 to give the condemned man opportunity to prepare himself. President Taft recently granted this extension upon the personal plea of Rausen's attorney, who approached the President at a Sunday school celebration and laid before him his plea.
Rausen was sentenced to death January 2 last for the murder of his wife and his brother.Andrew Gonzales, colored, is to be hanged March 7 for the murder of his wife, having been sentenced July 12 last.
Lunacy proceedings are pending in Gon-sales' case, and his life depends upon the verdict of the jury which will investigate his mind.Tony Milano was sentenced October 25 last for the murder of Harry Smith, a twelve-year-old boy. The date of his execution has been set for March 14, but his case was appealed to the Court of Appeals, where it is pending. The same is the case with Nathaniel Greene, who was sentenced to death January 25 last for an assault committed on Mrs. Adelaide Grant. The Appellate Court has also under consideration the appeal of W. H. Babens, who was sentenced to death July 25 last for the murder of a woman inmate of a bawdy house.TO WIDEN BENNING ROAD.*Bill Reported Seeks to Compromise Differences.Senator Curtis, for the District Committee, yesterday reported favorably the House bill for the widening of Benning road from Fifteenth Street to Pennay-vania Avenue.
The bill as reported is amended in an effort to effect a compromise between opposing interests, owners of adjacent property, and the railroad company, which, in the original bill, was directed to remove its tracks to the center of the improved road.This was compromised by amending the bill to provide for a highway 120 feet wide, instead of 110 feet, the addition of ten feet on one side leaving the car tracks in the center of the new highway and obviating an expenditure of $50,000 for their removal.Shaffer's Flowers for Valentines.
